Beyond Revenue: Advancing a Transformative
Tax Justice Agenda for Africa

About

Tax Justice Network Africa (TJNA)

Tax Justice Network Africa (TJNA) is a pan-African, membership-driven network working to advance fair, accountable, transparent, and people-centred tax and fiscal systems. TJNA was founded in 2007 at the World Social Forum. Today, TJNA brings together 53 national and regional member organisations across 26 African countries.

HOW WE DEFINE TAX JUSTICE

TJNA defines tax justice as the creation of fair, transparent, and accountable tax systems that empower African countries to harness, retain and equitably use their own resources; combat illicit financial flows, strengthen democratic governance, achieve fiscal sovereignty and sustainably finance the social and economic transformation needed to uphold the dignity, wellbeing, and shared prosperity of all Africans.

WHY TAX JUSTICE MATTERS

- Tax is not only about raising money. It is about power, fairness, accountability, and the kind of future Africa wants to build.
- Fair tax systems can help African countries mobilise resources to invest in long-term sustainable development, respond to climate change, reduce inequality and strengthen health systems.

OUR MISSION

To campaign and advocate for effective, evidence-based and just tax system changes in and for Africa, coordinating with global partners, and leading, mobilising and organising African civil society and institutional stakeholders.

OUR VISION

A just, sovereign and self-reliant Africa, where equitable and people-centred tax systems drive structural transformation, enabling all Africans to lead healthy, prosperous and dignified lives.

OUR VALUES

- Justice
- Accountability
- Participation
- Integrity
- Pan-Africanism
- Self-Reliance

THE UNDERLYING PROBLEM

Despite vast natural resources, human potential and economic possibilities, many African countries continue to experience poverty, inequality, debt pressures and limited public investment in essential services, driven by a system that undermines Africa's ability to mobilise and use its own resources for people-centred development.

OUR CENTRAL AMBITION

To advance a transformative tax justice agenda that strengthens Africa's fiscal sovereignty, reduces inequality, protects public resources, and enables African people to live with dignity.

OUR STRATEGIC FOCUS AREAS

During the 2026–2030 strategy period, TJNA will advance a bold, pan-African, feminist, decolonial and equity-centred tax justice agenda through seven mutually reinforcing Strategic Focus Areas:

01

Tax and the International Financial Architecture

Advancing fair global tax rules, African fiscal sovereignty and stronger action against illicit financial flows.

02

Tax, Trade and Investment

Challenging harmful tax incentives, unfair tax agreements and investment practices that reduce Africa's development space.

03

Tax, Natural Resource Governance and Climate Justice

Ensuring that Africa's natural resource wealth and climate finance contribute to public value, community benefit, and sustainable development.

04

Tax, Equity and Shared Prosperity

Promoting progressive and gender-responsive tax systems that reduce inequality, strengthen the social contract and foster shared prosperity in Africa.

05

Tax and Health

Advancing health taxes that reduce harmful consumption, counter industry interference and support sustainable health financing.

06

Partnership, Networking and Member Engagement

Strengthening TJNA's membership, alliances, regional caucuses and movement-building capacity.

07

Organisational Development and Sustainability

Building a resilient, accountable, well-resourced and learning-oriented institution capable of delivering long-term impact.

THEORY OF CHANGE

If

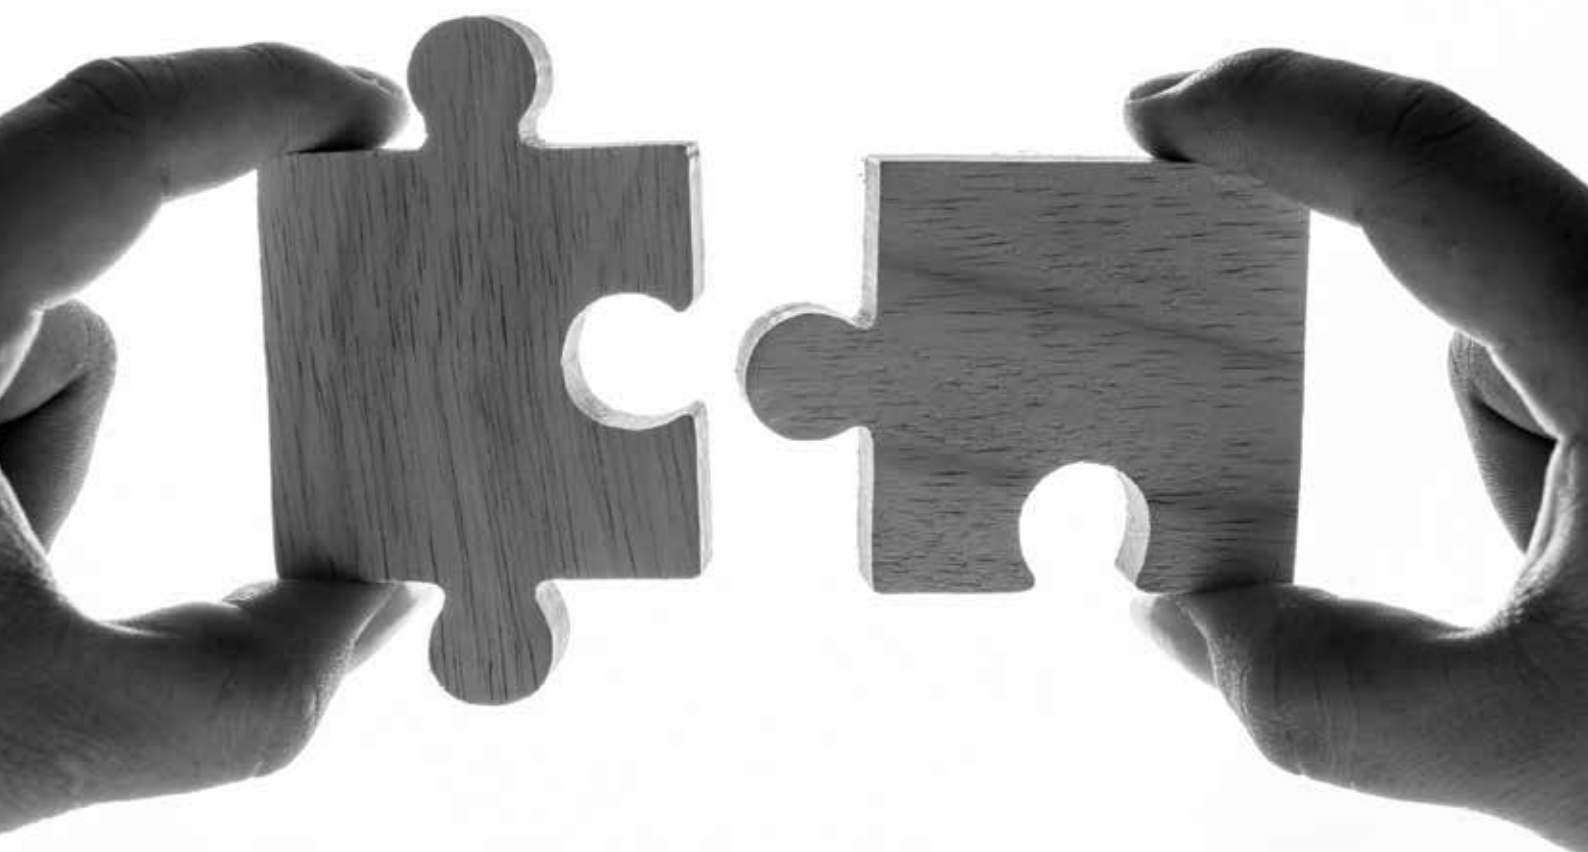

TJNA leverages its pan-African membership network and flagship platforms to generate Africa-led evidence, convene and coordinate coalitions, strengthen parliamentary and citizen oversight, build member capacities, and drive people-centred narratives.

Then

African civil society and reform champions will more effectively shape global, continental, regional and national tax and fiscal decisions (including international tax cooperation, extractives/climate finance governance, equity and feminist taxation reforms, and health taxes).

This will

Contribute to stronger fiscal sovereignty, reduced illicit leakages and harmful tax practices, more progressive and accountable tax systems, and improved financing for public services.
